About Candice

Candice Lemon-Scott is an award-winning and internationally published Australian author, editor and presenter. Her quirky style, fast-paced narratives and originality appeal to young readers in particular. She has a Bachelor of Communication / Diploma of Arts (Professional Writing & Editing) and is currently undertaking her Masters degree. She is also a qualified wildlife carer and has a professional background as a Media Manager. Candice is a Books in Homes role model. When not writing and presenting, she can usually be found on a beach somewhere.

Her publications include:

- Eco Rangers series
- Jake in Space series
- Two Little Rockets titles
- Aussie Chomp: Stinky Ferret & the JJs
- Unlocked
- The Day the Energies Saved the World

Candice entertained our P-3's with her stories. The students loved the puppets and getting to be part of the show. Candice's interacted wonderfully with our students and catered for all of the levels in the different classes.

Fitzgerald State School - September 2019

Candice engaged students with her personal experiences and storytelling. She captivated the students with relative props and role play.

Coomabah State School - July 2019

Candice was very easy to communicate with. She worked with three large groups of students from Years 1-6 with ease. The activities she had planned were engaging and the students gave positive feedback to their teachers after the visit.

Aspley East State School - August 2018

Candice's presentation for our middle school children was very well received and the group selected for the writing workshop were excited and productive.

Pacific Lutheran College - August, 2017

Candice was a pleasure to work with. She had the children engaged with their writing and they all had a wonderful time working with her. Candice was well-prepared and interacted in a beautiful way with both the teachers and students. We would certainly be happy to book her again in future years.

Warrigal Road State School - July, 2017

Talks & Workshops

TALKS

Candice frequently presents at writers' festivals, libraries, schools and community events. Candice offers primary school students a relaxed, fun and interactive style of presentation where children are able to explore their creativity and expand on their writing skills through active participation. Candice talks from personal experience about the writing and publishing process, shares readings from her work and encourages students to ask their own questions and discuss book and story ideas. She is also a qualified wildlife carer and incorporates this knowledge in presentations where relevant.

WORKSHOPS

Candice's workshops tie in with the National Curriculum and cover topics such as: character development; story structure; descriptive writing and translating ideas into stories. These workshops offer students the opportunity to contribute through group brainstorming. They are then able to expand on the ideas explored through their own personal application of concepts learned and discussed. Her use of physical tactile materials helps in this process.
